NEIL WILKINSON

LANCASHIRE, ENGLAND

Neil Wilkinson is a contemporary artist whose oil paintings capture the ever-changing moods of the natural world, with particular devotion to the skies and waters of Morecambe Bay and the South Lakes.

Before devoting himself fully to fine art, Neil enjoyed a distinguished career designing wallpapers, carpets, and textiles for high-end companies across Europe and the USA and his background in surface pattern design continues to weave through his practice, visible in the rhythmic flow of clouds, the rich layering of texture, and the nuanced treatment of tone that defines his paintings.

Neil's chosen medium, oil on canvas, allows him to build delicate veils of light and colour, creating scenes that seem to breathe with a life of their own. His surfaces are soft and matte, drawing the eye inward and encouraging a slow, contemplative gaze. Skies dominate these quiet worlds, sometimes anchored by distant landmarks, yet always free of human presence, preserving a deep, uninterrupted sense of solitude and wonder.
